The International Journal of Home Economics is an open-access, peer-reviewed, multidisciplinary platform for engaged home economics scholars and practitioners. We encourage submissions across the broad scope of the field.

This issue of the International Journal of Home Economics has two sections.

Section A Refereed papers.

Section B Features articles that were presented at the International Federation for Home Economics XXIV World Congress, 2024 with the theme Home Economics in a time of transformation: Bridging the past—Charting the future. These papers were submitted for peer review and presented at the Congress. They are published as received and have not undergone major reformatting or editorial refinement and as such have the status of peer-reviewed Congress papers.
